accorded Most-Favoured-Nation status to India in contravention of its GATJV WTO obligations; instead it currently allows imports from India only against a unilateral list of 570 items, many of which do not have a real export, potential from India. Under the circumstances, it is not feasible to formulate a promotion strategy for trade with Pakistan, even if there is a vast scope. The Government of India have made a formal demarche to the Pakistan Government about the MFN status, response to which is awaited.

Meanwhile, it is expected that some trade promotion would be facilitated with the operationalisation of SAARC Preferential Trading Arrangement (SAPTA) and the recent understarfding among all SAARC member countries to carry the SAPTA process forward.
